These figures correspond to a depth of 6,000 to 7,000 meters at sea. From these experiments it must not be concluded, according to Dr. Regnard, that there is a total absence of putrefaction in the greater depths of the sea. The curious "abysmal" fishes discovered in the Challenger and other expeditions appear to rise after death, so that they are sometimes found on the surface, though, as a rounding pressure diminishes long be ore they reach the air. Still, there is proof that bathybial or abysmal micro organisms, do not exist, and, if so, they could cause decomposition in the corpses of men as well as in the dead bodies of abysmal fishes. The question is of considerable medico-legal and yet greater biological interest, and
